

TECHNISCHE
UNIVERSITÄT
DRESDEN

Eighth AIMS International Conference on Dynamical Systems and Differential Equations

will be hosted by

The Technical University Dresden
Dresden, Germany
May 25 - 28, 2010

• Where is Dresden?

Dresden is located in the South-East of Germany between Berlin and Praha (Czech Republic)

Berlin
Capital of Germany

200km North of Dresden

Prag (Praha)
Capital of Czech Republic

150km South of Dresden

Dresden
Capital of the German federal state Saxony

Dresden is a city with a rich culture (baroque and modern architecture, many museums and theatres, a lot of parks), a modern industry (Saxonian silicon valley) and a place of high education and research. It has about 500.000 inhabitants.

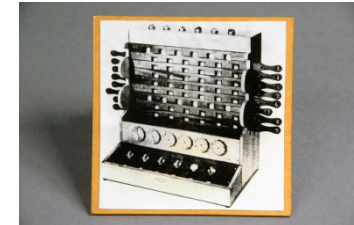

The Technical University Dresden is a full university with about 35.000 students – from engineering over sciences, mathematics, economy to humanities and medicine.

The campus is located in the South of the city.

The conference will be held in the Willers-Building and the Central Lectures Halls.

The Willers-Bau is the home of the mathematical institutes and also of important collections of mathematical 3d models and of historical computing machines, e.g. from W. Schickard and G. W. Leibniz.